Henredon's Folio Nine . . . a collection that captures the multiplicity of French, Italian and Spanish design of the sixteenth through the eighteenth centuries. It is, indeed, a knowledgeable compilation of the genius of the era, resulting in a carefully balanced assemblage characterized by tasteful eclecticism.

Within the whole there is an endless variety of harmonious groupings as well as individual pieces of great character and beauty that will stand alone, adding distinction wherever they are placed in the home. Each design element, too, adds just the right note to the total symphonic effect. Refined multiple mouldings, pattern-matched panels of rare wood, deep crisp carvings, and rich finishes blend into exciting combinations.

Naturally, superb woods have been gathered from the world's markets for use in the forming of Folio Nine. Canaletta veneer, a superbly-grained South American laurel, appears in the parquetry of table tops; olive ash burl veneer which resembles the fine olive wood used by 17th century Spanish cabinet-makers, adds its exquisite pattern to small tables and commodes and to elaborate facades; and finely-marked American walnut veneer is combined pleasingly with robust solid pecan. The distinctive quality of the lovely woods shows interestingly through the translucence of the slightly distressed finish, Nutria; this is sometimes combined with a darker finish, Malaga (a deep coffee-brown with gilded striping), sometimes with Verde (a glazed finish in a soft Celadon hue). All three finishes are used effectively on bedroom, dining room and occasional designs.

In addition, on certain select bedroom furniture designs, there is Del Mar, a warm neutral with pale olive striping accentuating the curves, scrolls and mouldings . . . and extravagantly beautiful, Silver Gilt.

In its ultimate connotation, Folio Nine will offer the homemaker something very rare indeed—an assemblage on which she can draw to achieve room settings of unusual flair and character. For here are the components that add up to a beautiful whole—heavy pieces and light ones, geometric shapes and curved ones, dark finishes and pale ones, straight lines and flowing ones. Above all, within the point and counterpoint that makes up the harmony of this Henredon collection, there is also the basic theme—the enduring craftsmanship that ultimately gives beautiful furniture its real meaning.

Folio Nine

Henredon's Folio Nine assemblage interprets the finest designs of the Mediterranean region during the period from the early 16th century to the late 18th century. With the gradual increase of trade there also occurred a greater style and cultural exchange between the Mediterranean countries. This exchange caused a homogenizing of tastes resulting in the evolution of furniture designs of a highly individual character.

Shown here are some examples of the finest style developments of the region. Although the original source of the influence is obvious, the individuality of the regional interpretation prevails to a greater or lesser degree throughout the entire group. In assembling Folio Nine Henredon selected these styles not only for their intrinsic good looks but also for the harmonious relationships of one to the other.

A. The tastes of the French court of Louis XV exerted a strong influence on Mediterranean design during the mid-18th century. These designs show the bold provincial interpretation of the style, especially notable in the more massive scale and the strong reverse of the cabriole leg. The Louis XV influence can also be seen in the 5-5502-53 Armoire (p. 29), 22-5501 China (p. 13), 46-5501 Chest (p. 4) and the 5501-53 Beds (pp. 26 and 29).

B. Excitement and variety are contributed by the "massive splendor" of this boldly carved headboard whose ancestry can be traced to the early 16th century. The bold, flowing foliated carving is a perfect complement to the geometric forms in Folio Nine.

C. The gilded wrought iron base of this cocktail table is reminiscent of the traditional Spanish braziers that usually sat in the middle of old Spanish rooms. The Mediterranean countries were famous for their ability to wrought iron. For richness and contrast to the more massive wood forms several wrought iron designs are included in Folio Nine. All have antiqued gold leaf finish.

D. Folio Nine includes many versions of the heavily moulded, multi-panel designs such as this majestic armoire. This style is strongly indebted to the "mudejar" style which evolved from a homogenization of Spanish and Moorish cultures, and is typical of Spanish, French and Italian furniture design of the 17th century.

F.

E. The 18th century Spanish cabriole leg is typified by the sharp break of the reverse curve. The leg style as seen on this desk and other occasional table designs, though definitely Mediterranean, reflects the prevalent tastes of the French and Dutch courts of the period. This lighter scaled style has been included to provide another source of lightness and movement to balance the heavy geometric forms.

F. During the late 18th century the revived interest in classic styles made its impression on all European design, yet the strength and boldness of the Mediterranean character prevails. This is evidenced in this generously scaled cocktail table, in the 20-5500 and 20-5502 Dining Tables (pp. 21 and 23) and in the 5500 and 5502 Dining Chairs (pp. 18, 21 and 23).

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE CARE OF HENREDON FURNITURE

Your Henredon furniture is made by skilled and knowledgeable craftsmen using the finest quality materials and equipment. Henredon furniture utilizes a combination of solid and veneer construction for superior strength and dimensional stability, thereby minimizing tendency to warp and crack. More beautiful wood grain interest is achieved through the use of veneers since they can be matched in numerous ways to emphasize the natural beauty of the wood. With a reasonable amount of proper care your Henredon furniture will offer you many, many years of beauty and service. We suggest the following observances:

Avoid placing in areas of bright sunlight and excessive dampness. Avoid extremes of heat and cold.

Place felt or leather on bases of lamps and accessories to avoid scratching or marring of finish.

Polishing is usually necessary about every six months. When polishing we recommend a polish such as Guardsman Cleaning Polish which cleans as well as polishes. Use according to instructions on the container.

Casual dusting should be done with a slightly dampened soft cloth to pick up dust particles rather than move them around on the surface. You may wish to dampen your cloth with diluted Guardsman Cleaning Polish.

Remove spilled beverages, foods and smudges with a damp soft cloth. Use mild soap or diluted Guardsman Cleaning Polish if necessary.
